CH8-1 · 原书183页 8 Pieces and pawns in the attack on the castled king	CH8-1 · 原书183页 第八章 攻击易位王时的棋子与兵
CH8-2 · 原书183页 Our examination of the attack on the castled king has so far (in chapters 4-7) been mainly directed towards the spatial aspect of the attack, and it is now time to examine the parts played by particular pieces and the significance of material sacrifices. Some of these points have already been touched on, so in this chapter we shall concern ourselves only with certain themes where the material aspect is paramount and which have not yet been fully dealt with.	CH8-2 · 原书183页 到目前为止，我们在第四至第七章研究攻击易位王，主要着眼于进攻的空间方面。现在该考察各个棋子的作用，以及弃子的意义了。有些问题前面已经涉及，所以本章只讨论那些以子力因素为主、尚未充分论述的主题。
CH8-3 · 原书183页 The queen in the attack on the castled king	CH8-3 · 原书183页 后在攻击易位王时的作用
CH8-4 · 原书183页 The queen is undoubtedly the most important piece in the attack on the castled king, and indeed without it such an attack rarely comes into consideration. Admittedly, it is not impossible to undertake a direct attack without the queen, but the necessary conditions for it cannot easily be created.	CH8-4 · 原书183页 后无疑是攻击易位王时最重要的棋子。实际上，没有后时，这种进攻很少进入考虑范围。诚然，无后也并非不能发动直接进攻，但所需条件不易创造。
CH8-5 · 原书183页 The queen's great mobility, its main characteristic, is a useful factor in the attack on the castled king, but its effectiveness at short range is even more striking. If it is in occupation of the focal-point g7, the enemy king on g8 has every square taken from it; moreover, if it is protected on that focal-point and the focal-point itself has been cleared of the influence of the opposing pieces, then the king is mated. The queen is, as it were, 'made for focal-points', and particularly for play on compound focal-points. Therefore, the queen's chief strategy in an attack on the castled king consists in playing on the focal-points and discovering ways in which to attack as effectively as possible at close range. Thus the queen, which in an endgame on an open board feels such an aversion towards the opponent's king that it will not allow it nearer than two paces away, is filled in attack with some kind of dark desire and dreams only of how it can steal into the castled dwelling and there fold the king in a close and deadly embrace.	CH8-5 · 原书183页 后机动性极强，这是它的主要特点，在攻击易位王时很有用；但它近距离作战的效力更加突出。如果后占据g7焦点，g8敌王的所有格子都会被剥夺；若后在该焦点受到保护，而且焦点本身已排除敌子的影响，王就被将杀了。可以说，后是“为焦点而生”的，尤其适合在复合焦点上行动。因此，后攻击易位王的主要战略，是围绕焦点运作，寻找最有效的近身攻击办法。后在空旷棋盘的残局中，对敌王如此嫌恶，总要让它保持两格之遥；进攻时却充满某种幽暗欲望，一心梦想潜入王城，把王紧紧抱住，给予致命的拥抱。
CH8-6 · 原书183—184页 The reverse side of the queen's positive characteristics is its great material value; this means that the queen is not lightly sacrificed and is not as a rule given up for smaller gains, such as preventing castling or clearing a focal-point. However, there are a number of different kinds of queen sacrifice which occur in the attack on the castled king; these can be reduced in the main to two fairly sharply differentiated types: the case where the sacrifice forces mate, 'check upon check', as it were, and the case where it produces a great positional weakness on the opposing side.	CH8-6 · 原书183—184页 后这些优点的另一面，是它极高的子力价值。因此不能轻易弃后，通常也不会为了阻止易位、清理一个焦点等较小收益而弃后。不过，攻击易位王时仍有多种弃后，大致可以归为区别鲜明的两类：一类通过接连不断的将军，强制将杀；另一类则在对方局面中造成巨大的弱点。

CH8-25 · 原书185—186页 Lovers of curiosities will have noticed the common square (g6 or g3) on which the queen is sacrificed on all three occasions. The curious side of these examples should not distract one from noticing what is typical in them: in all these cases the attacker has a number of other pieces at his disposal, all in the strongest aggressive positions, while only his queen is somehow 'underemployed'. As a result, it is given the task of breaking up the position by sacrificing itself. The situation is that although the pieces are in very aggressive positions, they cannot settle the issue by themselves since, if they are sacrificed, their aggressive formation also disappears. It is therefore left to a less committed piece to carry out the work of destruction, and in these cases this is none other than the queen. Usually, however, the reverse applies: the other pieces are sacrificed, while the queen reaps the harvest.	CH8-25 · 原书185—186页 喜欢奇闻的读者会发现，三次弃后都发生在相应的同一个格子g6或g3。但这些例子的奇巧，不应掩盖其中的典型因素：进攻方都有许多其他棋子，全部处于最具攻击力的位置，只有后似乎“用武不足”。因此，它承担了弃掉自身、破坏敌阵的任务。其原因是：其他棋子虽然位置积极，却不能独力解决问题，因为若将它们弃掉，强大的进攻配置也随之消失。于是，破坏工作便留给一枚牵涉较少的棋子，而在这些例子中，它恰恰就是后。不过通常情形正相反：弃掉的是其他棋子，后负责收获成果。

CH8-28 · 原书186页 The examples in chapters 4-7 have shown us various kinds of operations on the part of the rook, the bishop, and the knight on lines and focal-points, and no further illustrations of the use of these pieces in an attack on the castled king need be given. Only one special case remains to be dealt with, and that is the attack on the castled king carried out by the heavy pieces (queen and rooks) alone. The main feature of this kind of attack can be summed up as the task of overcoming the clumsiness of the rooks. The attacker must aim to make his own rooks active and force his opponent's into passivity. A rook's mobility depends essentially on its ability to switch its control suddenly from one file to another and, in particular, from a file to a rank. Or, in the terminology used in my Introduction to chess (2nd ed., p. 171), the rook must have corresponding strong squares at its disposal. Here are a few examples:	CH8-28 · 原书186页 第四至第七章的实例，已展示车、象、马在各种线路和焦点上的行动，无须再举例说明它们在攻击易位王时的运用。现在只剩一种特殊情况：单用重子，即后和车，攻击易位王。这类进攻的主要特点，可以概括为克服车的笨拙。进攻方应设法活跃自己的车，迫使对方的车陷于被动。车的机动性，根本上取决于它能否把控制突然从一条直线转到另一条，尤其从直线转到横线。用我在《国际象棋入门》第二版第171页的术语来说，就是车必须拥有可用的对应强格。以下是几个例子：

CH8-67 · 原书190页 Before we turn to the role of the pawns in the attack on the castled king, a few general remarks must be made about sacrifices in the castling area. Certain combinative elements are present in the case of every sacrifice, though these sacrifices may be of widely diverging types. However, the typical sacrifice in the castling area is the one which is closely influenced by the special characteristics of that area, namely the castled king and the pawns in front of it. The typical sacrifice either changes the structure of the pawns, or aims to draw the king on to a square where it can be attacked, or else helps to create a focal-point. We have already met examples of the last two types in the course of discussing focal-points, particularly in the case of the classic bishop sacrifice. Here our principal interest is the pawn structure and the possibility of altering it by means of a sacrifice. A sacrifice can either simply annihilate one of the pawns in front of the king, or it can deflect the pawn on to another file, or finally it can cause it to be blocked.	CH8-67 · 原书190页 在转入兵的作用之前，须先对王城区域的弃子作几点一般说明。每种弃子都包含某些组合因素，尽管其类型可能相差极大。然而，王城区域的典型弃子，与该区域的特殊性质紧密相关，即易位王及其前方的兵。典型弃子或者改变兵形，或者把王引到可受攻击的格子，或者帮助创造焦点。讨论焦点、尤其古典弃象时，我们已经见过后两类例子。这里主要关注兵形，以及通过弃子改变兵形的可能。弃子可以直接消灭王前的一兵，可以把兵引到另一条直线上，也可以使这个兵被封锁。

CH8-99 · 原书193页 We have already referred to the annihilation of the pawns in front of the castled king as the most important or at any rate predominant result of sacrificial operations. It would be more exact to say that the destruction of these pawns is the most common combinative element of sacrifices in the castling area. Most players tend to pay more attention to the material aspect than to the temporal one, but the most decisive consequence of the destruction of pawns is that the departed pawns can no longer affect the game. This is a permanent positional factor by means of which many combinations are sustained, even when all may not have been in order on the temporal side. It is very important to spot the opportunities for making a destructive sacrifice, and in many positions the attacker is shown the way by simply calculating what would happen if his opponent were not to have a certain pawn.	CH8-99 · 原书193页 前面已经说过，消灭易位王前的兵，是弃子行动最重要、至少也是最主要的结果。更准确地说，消灭这些兵，是王城区域弃子中最常见的组合因素。多数棋手较重视子力因素，较少注意时间因素；但消灭兵最关键的后果，在于消失的兵再也不能影响棋局。这是一种永久的局面棋因素，即使时间方面未必一切妥当，许多组合仍能靠它成立。发现破坏性弃子的机会十分重要；在许多局面中，进攻者只须计算：如果对方少了某一个兵，会发生什么？答案便能指明方向。

CH8-158 · 原书199页 The pawns in the attack on the castled king	CH8-158 · 原书199页 兵在攻击易位王时的作用
CH8-159 · 原书199—200页 These examples of destructive sacrifices have shown us a procedure for dealing with the opponent's pawns, and now we shall examine the part played by the attacker's pawns in the attack on the castled king. The part is a very varied one, reflecting, as it does, the rich possibilities inherent in the pawn's movements. The pawns are, above all, the pieces which cost one the least to sacrifice in one's efforts to weaken the enemy position; they are also excellent at harrying one's opponent's pieces as well as helping to support one's own on focal-points or strong squares. In all these cases the positive characteristics of the pawn are to the fore. The other side to the use of pawns in an attack on the castled king is a logical consequence of their negative characteristics, namely their limited mobility and the impossibility of reversing their moves. The attacker's pawn needs, on average, three moves before it can have a direct effect on the opposing castling area itself; also, the attacker cannot transfer it from one file to another at will, but only when opposing units are so placed as to come into its line of fire. Equally inconvenient is the other aspect of the pawn's negative characteristics: in advancing, it weakens the squares which it leaves behind it, and if the attack does not succeed, serious positional weaknesses may become evident in the attacker's position. The irreversibility of pawn moves may also lead to a general blockade, which in turn produces a rigid position and complicates the attack. However, the pawn still has one more positive characteristic which can on some occasions help the attacker: the promotion of the pawn into a piece on the opponent's back rank may be the attacker's last trump at the critical stage of an attack.	CH8-159 · 原书199—200页 这些破坏性弃子的例子，展示了处理敌兵的一种办法。现在我们来考察进攻方自己的兵在攻击易位王时所起的作用。兵的作用非常多样，反映了兵步本身所蕴含的丰富可能。首先，为了削弱敌阵而弃兵，代价最小；兵也很善于驱赶敌子，并协助支持己方棋子占据焦点或强格。这些都体现了兵的优点。使用兵进攻的另一面，则合乎逻辑地来自兵的缺点：机动性有限，而且不能后退。进攻方的兵通常平均要走三步，才能直接影响敌方王城；进攻者也不能随意把它从一条直线调到另一条，只能在敌子恰好进入其攻击范围时通过吃子转线。兵的另一个缺点同样不便：向前推进会削弱身后的格子；若进攻失败，进攻方局面中就可能显露严重弱点。兵步不可逆，还可能导致全面封锁，使局面僵硬，增加进攻难度。不过兵另有一种优点，有时能够帮助进攻者：在敌方底线升变成子，可能成为进攻关键阶段的最后王牌。
CH8-160 · 原书200页 Thus all the different aspects of the pawn's special characteristics find their expression in an attack on the castled king, and the picture becomes still more varied when we fill in the spatial side of pawn operations in this kind of attack. CH8-161 · 原书200页 1) The attacker's pawn (with or without a sacrifice) forces the opponent to weaken his castled position. 2) It serves to create combinative elements in attack (e.g. by deflecting or attracting the opponent's pieces or opening up files). 3) It forms part of an attacking formation (e.g. in the formation with a rook on h1 and a pawn on h4 or as a support to a piece on a focal-point). 4) A particular example of such an attacking formation which should be mentioned is the pawn centre; as a rule, this serves either generally to confine the opponent or to provide the basis for an attack on the castled king. 5) The pawn advances independently on the flank in order to drive an enemy piece away or to take control of a square. An advance of this kind is usually called a bayonet attack. 6) Two or three attacking wing pawns advance against the opponent's castled position in a frontal formation (a pawn avalanche or roller). 7) The pawn moves up into the castling area as a straightforward attacking unit against the enemy king. 8) The pawn advances into the castling area (with or without an attack on the king) in order to be promoted, after which it can carry on the attack in its new role.	CH8-161 · 原书200页 1）进攻方的兵，无论是否弃掉，迫使对手削弱王城。 2）制造进攻中的组合因素，例如引离或引入敌子，或开放直线。 3）组成攻击配置的一部分，例如h1车、h4兵的配置，或支持焦点上的棋子。 4）这种攻击配置中，一个值得单列的例子是兵中心；它通常总体限制对手，或为攻击易位王提供基础。 5）兵在侧翼独立推进，驱赶敌子或控制某格。这通常称为刺刀进攻。 6）两三个侧翼进攻兵组成正面阵列，向敌王城推进，即兵的雪崩或滚压。 7）兵进入王城区域，直接作为攻击单位对付敌王。 8）兵进入王城区域，以攻击王或不攻击王的方式争取升变，随后以新身份继续进攻。
CH8-162 · 原书200—201页 These various types of action are usually interrelated in practical play, and single moves often combine two or more such functions. Indeed, when the process is observed as a whole over the space of a few moves, the continuous transition from one type to another is virtually the rule, except in the case of point 4 (centre pawns). As an example of the kind of progressive changes which can take place in the role of a pawn attack let us look schematically at 'the career of an h-pawn', move by move.	CH8-162 · 原书200—201页 这些行动类型在实战中通常互相关联，单步着法往往兼有两种以上功能。事实上，如果把几步之内的过程作为整体观察，除第4点中心兵外，从一种类型不断转变为另一种，几乎就是常态。为了说明兵进攻的作用如何逐步变化，我们逐步示意一下“一个h兵的生涯”。

CH8-167 · 原书201页 The centre pawns have the task of controlling important squares and preventing the opposing forces from using them. As a result the pawn centre is the main weapon in the struggle for an advantage in development and space. However, in addition to the general positional function of restricting the opponent, the pawn centre also acts as a basis for an attack on the castled king. Firstly, the overall restriction imposed on the opponent makes it difficult for him to deploy his pieces and so indirectly assists the attacker's plans; in addition, each of the centre pawns directly controls the outer squares of the castled position. Thus, on e5, the e-pawn controls the important square f6, and on e6, the square f7; a similar control is exercised against the queenside castling position by the d-pawn (the squares c6 and c7).	CH8-167 · 原书201页 中心兵的任务，是控制重要格子，不让敌子使用。因此，兵中心是争夺出子优势和空间优势的主要武器。但除了限制对手这一一般的局面棋作用，兵中心还为攻击易位王提供基础。首先，对对手的整体限制使其难以部署子力，间接帮助进攻者实施计划；其次，每一个中心兵都直接控制王城外围的格子。例如e兵在e5时控制重要的f6，在e6时控制f7；d兵对长易位阵地也发挥类似控制，涉及c6、c7格。
CH8-168 · 原书201—202页 We have already seen a number of fine examples of the influence of a centre pawn in an attack on the castled king, and especially the part played by the pawn on e5 in the classic bishop sacrifice. CH8-188 · 原书203—204页 It is an irony of fate that the person to experience the might of the centre in this game should have been Tarrasch, a great devotee of the centre and a noted exponent of central pawn strategy. Such drastic examples of an action by the whole central mass in the attack on the castled king will not be found in contemporary master practice. The technique of playing against the centre has been so perfected that one can no longer succeed by the single expedient of following the pattern of the game above. Masters no longer accept gambits like the Blumenfeld; on all occasions they examine the extent of the compensation or the possibility of play against the centre, either by counterattacking it with pawns, or by exerting a restraining pressure on it with their pieces. The central formations which occur nowadays in master chess are not as a rule so uncompromisingly lethal as this one, but instead tend to be critical and sensitive formations, which demand an extremely precise use of the pieces if they are not to become weak and collapse. As a result of this characteristic sensitivity of central formations in the games of present-day masters, the temporal aspect of such actions has also altered, and nowadays one rarely sees a full pawn centre being maintained for many moves; it usually appears as a transitory feature, a phase of the game which is immediately followed either by an attack on the castled king or some other action. The following game provides an illustration of this kind of temporary, flexible centre and of a rapidly developed attack on the castled king.	CH8-188 · 原书203—204页 命运真会开玩笑：本局亲身体验中心威力的，竟然是中心的忠实拥护者、中心兵战略的著名倡导者塔拉什。在本书写作时代的大师实战中，已经找不到整个中心兵群如此猛烈参与杀王的例子。对抗中心的技术已经十分完善，单纯照搬本局模式，不能再获成功。大师们不再轻易接受布卢门费尔德这类弃兵；他们总会衡量补偿是否充分，以及能否用兵反击中心，或以棋子施压、限制中心。因此，当时大师对局中的中心兵阵，通常不会像本局这样具有毫不妥协的杀伤力，而往往处于关键且敏感的状态；若不极其精确地运用棋子，就会变弱、崩溃。这种敏感性也改变了行动的时间特点：完整兵中心很少维持许多步，通常只是暂时现象，是紧接着攻击易位王或展开其他行动的一个阶段。下一局展示这种暂时而灵活的中心，以及迅速展开的杀王进攻。

In the very line Black used here to simplify the position (moves 6-9) the exchange of the f6-knight, the piece exposed to attack by e4-e5, is an essential part of Black's whole system; now, however, a knight appears again on f6 and with it the attacking motif e5. Nd4! showed a typical attack on g7 ending in success for White, whereas in the continuation after 23. Ng5?! h6! a consistent attack could not be built up against any focal-point; White's operations instead took on the character of an attempt to destroy the black king's pawn cover, and as a result Black obtained open lines for his pieces as well as the time in which to organize his defences. CH8-266 · 原书213页 The formation composed of two or three neighbouring pawns on the same rank is often called a ‘phalanx’ in chess literature, but when such a phalanx attacks it can also be suitably described as an ‘avalanche’ or ‘roller’. An attack based on a pawn avalanche generally entails even more positional commitments than the bayonet attack, as it involves advancing two pawns instead of only one. On the other hand, the avalanche's power is also greater than that of the bayonet, for an avalanche drives all the enemy pieces before it and offers more attacking possibilities.	CH8-266 · 原书213页 两三个相邻兵处于同一横线的阵形，棋书常称为“兵方阵”；这种方阵展开攻击时，也很适合形容为“雪崩”或“滚压”。兵雪崩进攻通常比刺刀进攻承担更多局面上的责任，因为要推进的是两个兵，而非一个。但雪崩的威力也更大，它能把面前的敌子全部赶开，提供更多进攻可能。

CH8-267 · 原书213页 When attacking by means of a pawn avalanche, it is usually important that one's opponent should be unable to retaliate in the centre or on the other wing. This is, admittedly, a general condition for any kind of attack on the castled king, but in the case of an attack using pawns it applies even more strictly, since one is more restricted positionally and the actual process of advancing pawns is slower than play with pieces, with the result that one's opponent has greater opportunities for counterplay. The next example will show us a case where the conditions for an attack using the avalanche are favourable.	CH8-267 · 原书213页 采用兵雪崩时，对手不能在中央或另一翼反击，通常是很重要的条件。诚然，这也是任何攻击已易位王的一般条件；但对兵的进攻，要求更为严格，因为己方在局面上的约束更多，实际推进兵又比用棋子行动慢，对手因而有更多反击机会。下例便是适合采用兵雪崩的情形。

Moreover, White already has a pawn at f5, which is in fact in his way at the moment. CH8-325 · 原书219页 Throughout the opening stage of the game the conditions required to justify a ‘bayonet attack’ have been gradually accumulating. One group of these conditions has already been noted in the shape of Black's inferior moves and his lack of concern to control at least one of the important squares e5 and e4. The other group can be revealed by an analysis of the structure of White's position. This is clearly distinguished by good piece play together with a modest but sound pawn formation in the centre. Indeed, its essence lies in the very soundness of the formation c3, d4, and e3, with the strong protection which it gives to the square d4. If this solidity in the centre did not exist, Black would be able at the last moment to organize a counterattack in the centre as an answer to White's attack on his castled king.	CH8-325 · 原书219页 整个开局阶段，支持“刺刀进攻”的条件逐渐积累起来。其中一组已经指出：黑方走了劣着，并且没有关心至少控制e5、e4这两个重要格中的一个。另一组则可通过分析白方结构看出：其鲜明特点是棋子配置良好，中央兵形虽不张扬，却很稳固。关键正是c3、d4、e3兵形的坚实，尤其对d4格提供强力保护。若中央没有这种稳固性，黑方便能在最后关头组织中央反击，回应白方对王城的攻击。

CH8-374 · 原书223页 In connection with pawn attacks, there are two cases worth mentioning which often arise in practice. In one case the position requires a rigid, positional use of the pawns in attack, and in the other the position is not at all suitable for the co-operation of the pawns and consequently the attack is better carried out by the pieces alone. For these two cases some suitable examples will now be given.	CH8-374 · 原书223页 关于兵的攻击，实战中常有两种值得一提的情形：一种要求严格按照局面棋原则使用兵，另一种则完全不适合兵参与，最好只靠棋子进攻。下面各给出适当例子。

AA-p223-fig01 · 原书223页

CH8-375 · 原书223页 This position is from the game Steinitz-Marco, Nuremberg 1896. White is the more aggressively placed but Black's position is fairly solid, especially in the centre, where White lacks a pawn base. The diagonal a2-g8 may become dangerous for Black, but it is not so yet, for if Bc4+, Black can play ...Be6. Nor are the conditions favourable for an attack with the 'bayonet' or 'avalanche' here; therefore, another way has to be found to strengthen White's position, one which is essentially of a purely positional nature. Steinitz finds it: he advances his f-pawn to f5, where it restricts Black; the fact that this leads to a blocked position is a good thing, since Black's f-pawn can then be fixed at f6 and subsequently 'rolled up' by g4 and g5. This is a clear positional plan, which leads to the destruction of Black's pawn chain and thence to a real attack on his castled king. There is no bayonet or avalanche here, though pawn moves are still the decisive means of attack.	CH8-375 · 原书223页 此局面来自斯坦尼茨—马尔科，纽伦堡，1896年。白方位置更具攻击性，但黑方相当稳固，尤其是白方缺乏兵据点的中央。a2-g8斜线可能给黑方带来危险，目前却还没有，因为对白方Bc4+，黑方可...Be6。这里也不适合"刺刀"或"雪崩"，所以必须另找一种本质上纯属局面棋的办法加强白方。斯坦尼茨找到了：把f兵推进到f5，限制黑方。由此封闭局面反而是好事，因为黑f兵被固定在f6，随后可用g4、g5"卷掉"。这是清楚的局面棋计划，先破坏黑兵链，再真正攻击王城。这里没有刺刀或雪崩，尽管冲兵仍是决定性的进攻手段。

Every practical player will have experienced the difficulty of such a choice, and an immense amount of time has been consumed in master chess on such decisions. CH8-384 · 原书225页 It will be easy for the reader to see that this position has arisen as the direct result of a classic bishop sacrifice. It is clear that White must aim to get a rook on to the h-file, and the only question is how to do it. One way would be f4 and then Rf3-h3, and the other Re1-e3-h3. The first is faulty and allows Black to draw, while the second is correct and leads to a win for White. The position is such that only the pieces can cope with the task; the pawns should stay at home to avoid getting in the way. The following variations prove this assertion. CH8-415 · 原书227页 In comparing these two variations, the reader cannot but recognize the essential feature of the position that condemns 1. f4? to failure but brings victory to the attack carried out by the pieces. The move f4 obstructs both the diagonal for the bishop on c1 and the f-file for the rooks, and so limits the possibilities of action along the very two lines on which Black is weak. His weakness on the f-file can be seen at a glance, and it is not difficult to deduce (on examining the diagrammed position) that he will also be weak on the dark squares, since he will be unable to postpone ...g6 for long. After f4 White is left with only his domination of the h-file, whereas if he does not play it, he also has the f-file and a line of action for his bishop, and it is the combination of all these factors that gives him victory.	CH8-415 · 原书227页 比较这两个变化，读者不能不认识到局面的本质：为什么1. f4?失败，而纯粹用棋子进攻却能获胜。f4既堵住c1象的斜线，也堵住车的f线，恰好限制了黑方薄弱的两条线路。f线的弱点一目了然；观察图示局面，也不难推断黑格会弱，因为黑方无法长期推迟...g6。走f4之后，白方便只剩对h线的控制；若不走它，则还有f线和象的活动线路。正是这些因素结合起来，带来胜利。

Rf3 will win at once, but if this possibility is excluded, e.g. by White's having his h-pawn on h3, what then? Even so, White wins — by 1. f5! exf5 (otherwise f6 is decisive) 2. Rxf5, and Black has no answer to the two threats of 3. Rf4 and 3. Qh5+ Kg8 followed by either 4. Nf7 or 4. Rxf8+ Kxf8 5. Qh8+ and the queen mates on g7. If, for example, 2... Qd7, then 3. Qxf8+, while if 2... g6, then 3. Rf4 Qxg5 4. Qxe8.	CH8-417 · 原书227页 首先假设白f兵已经在f4而不在f2，且轮白先。当然，1. Rf3立即取胜；但若排除这种可能，例如白h兵在h3，又如何？白方仍能取胜：1. f5! exf5（否则f6决定胜负）2. Rxf5，黑方无法同时应付3. Rf4及3. Qh5+ Kg8的威胁；后者接4. Nf7，或4. Rxf8+ Kxf8 5. Qh8+，再由后在g7将杀。例如2... Qd7，则3. Qxf8+；若2... g6，则3. Rf4 Qxg5 4. Qxe8。
CH8-418 · 原书228页 The pawn on f4 wins in this case precisely because it disappears and in doing so immediately opens up the f-file with disastrous consequences for Black.	CH8-418 · 原书228页 这一例中，f4兵之所以能取胜，恰恰因为它消失了，立即打开f线，给黑方带来灾难性后果。

CH8-420 · 原书228页 This position is fairly promising; White has his f-file and the bishop's diagonal is free as in variation '2', but the h-file has to be opened up by advancing the h-pawn. All White has to do is induce ...g6, after which the task of line opening is made easier and a blocked position averted.	CH8-420 · 原书228页 这个局面颇有希望。和变化"2"一样，白方拥有f线，象的斜线也畅通；但必须推进h兵打开h线。白方只须诱出...g6，此后开线更容易，也能避免局面封闭。
CH8-421 · 原书228页 White's best is 1. Re1 Qd7 2. Qh5+ Kg8 3. Re3 (forcing ...g6, since it threatens Rf3 and Rxf8+; thus if 3... Nc6 4. Rf3 Nd8, then 5. Rxf8+ Kxf8 6. Qh8+ Ke7 7. Qxg7+ Nf7 8. Nxf7 Rg8 9. Qh7 and White wins) 3... g6 4. Qg4 Nh7 5. Nh3, when he has good prospects.	CH8-421 · 原书228页 白方最佳的是1. Re1 Qd7 2. Qh5+ Kg8 3. Re3（威胁Rf3和Rxf8+，迫使...g6；若3... Nc6 4. Rf3 Nd8，则5. Rxf8+ Kxf8 6. Qh8+ Ke7 7. Qxg7+ Nf7 8. Nxf7 Rg8 9. Qh7，白胜）3... g6 4. Qg4 Nh7 5. Nh3，前景良好。

CH8-423 · 原书228页 With White's g-pawn on g3 (rather than g2) the problem is more difficult, since the pawn is only in the way there. Perhaps White ought to give perpetual check at once. If 1. Re1, Black plays 1... Nc6, after which 2. Re3 does not work because of 2... Qxg5, while after 2. g4 Qd7 3. Qh5+ Kg8 4. Re3 g6 5. Qh4 Qg7 Black's defences are already in quite good shape.	CH8-423 · 原书228页 若白g兵在g3而非g2，问题就更难，因为这个兵在那里只会碍事。白方也许应该立即长将。若1. Re1，黑方1... Nc6，此后2. Re3因2... Qxg5而不行；若2. g4 Qd7 3. Qh5+ Kg8 4. Re3 g6 5. Qh4 Qg7，黑方的防御已相当完整。

CH8-425 · 原书228页 In this case the third rank is clear for the rook, and in addition the pawn at g4 also lends force to the thrust f5. As well as the method starting with 1. Re1 (on the pattern of variation '2'), still more successful here is 1. f4 (threatening Rf3) 1... Qd7 2. Qh5+ Kg8 3. f5 and White must win. Here, finally, we have a case where an attack using the pawns is correct. One tiny change in the position and already the choice between attacking with pieces or with pawns has swung in favour of the pawns. Such is the sensitivity of the attack on the castled king, and it is now clear how difficult it is to create any more definite rule on this point! Still, I shall attempt to conclude the chapter with a series of tips — which will naturally apply only generally.	CH8-425 · 原书228页 这时第三横线为车畅通无阻，而且g4兵还增强了f5突破的力量。除了按变化"2"的模式从1. CH8-426 · 原书229页 Ten Practical Tips	CH8-426 · 原书229页 十条实用提示
CH8-427 · 原书229页 1) It is an essential condition for any attack on the castled king that the opponent should not be able to counterattack in the centre or on the other side of the board, or rather that his counterattack should not be dangerous and not develop fully before the attack on the castled king. An attack using pawns usually progresses more slowly than one with pieces, since it often contains moves without any immediate threat. So, before embarking on a pawn attack, one should beware particularly of the possibility of a counterattack by one's opponent.	CH8-427 · 原书229页 1）任何攻击已易位王的一个必要条件，是对手无法在中央或另一翼反击；更准确地说，是其反击不应危险，也不能先于王城攻击充分展开。兵的攻击通常比棋子的攻击进展慢，因为常包含没有即时威胁的着法。所以，在发动兵的进攻之前，尤其要警惕对手反击的可能性。
CH8-428 · 原书229页 2) A central pawn blockade prevents or limits counterattacks and so makes a pawn attack on the castled king easier.	CH8-428 · 原书229页 2）中央的兵封锁会阻止或限制反击，从而使兵对王城的进攻更容易。

CH8-429 · 原书229页 3) One should always examine whether a promising attack can be made by the pieces alone, and if it can, the pawns should be left ‘at home’.	CH8-429 · 原书229页 3）总要考察，仅用棋子能否展开有希望的进攻；如果可以，兵就应该“留在家里”。
CH8-430 · 原书229页 4) As a rule, it is difficult for pawn assaults to succeed against unweakened castled positions, since the possibilities of blockade are very great. A preliminary action by the pieces is necessary to produce a weakening of the castled position or to remove the possibility of a later blockade when the pawns advance.	CH8-430 · 原书229页 4）一般而言，兵的冲击很难攻破未经削弱的王城，因为防守方有很大的封锁可能。因此，必须先用棋子行动，削弱王城，或消除随后兵推进时遭到封锁的可能。
CH8-431 · 原书229页 5) Every blockade in the castling area radically changes the character of the position, for it affects the activity of individual pieces and the whole nature of the play which follows.	CH8-431 · 原书229页 5）王城区域中的每一次封锁，都会从根本上改变局面的性质，因为它会影响各子力的活跃性，以及随后整个战斗的性质。
CH8-432 · 原书230页 6) One's own pawns usually constitute a great obstacle to one's rooks; if a position is characterized by the opponent's weakness on the files, the rooks are important pieces and pawns have no business on these files, except when their advance actually helps to clear a file. Rooks can be particularly usefully deployed on the third rank, if it is clear of pawns (an example of this was provided by the variations arising from the diagram on p.224).	CH8-432 · 原书230页 6）己方的兵通常是车的重大障碍。如果局面的特点是对手在纵线上薄弱，车就是重要子力，兵便不该占着这些线路，除非它们的推进确实有助于清空某条线。没有兵阻挡时，车部署在第三横线特别有用（第224页图示局面的变化就给出了例子）。
CH8-433 · 原书230页 7) A pawn storm generally increases the risk of an inferior endgame. If other elements in the position are also weighted against an endgame, the added risk entailed in an attack on the castled king is acceptable. However, if the player has the necessary conditions for a good endgame, he must make certain that his assault with the pawns will be successful, for otherwise it represents a real risk.	CH8-433 · 原书230页 7）兵的猛攻通常会增加进入劣势残局的风险。如果局面中的其他因素也不利于残局，那么为攻击王城而增加的风险可以接受。但如果具备良好残局的条件，就必须确认兵的冲击能够成功，否则便是在冒实实在在的风险。
CH8-434 · 原书230页 8) A player who already has an advanced pawn facing his opponent's castled position but which somehow gets in his way (e.g. a pawn on f5) must contemplate advancing the adjacent pawn, so that the lone pawn can be made an active component of an avalanche. Every advanced pawn presents a pretext for an avalanche and draws its neighbour towards it. This is least so in the case of an advanced h-pawn and most so if the pawn is on f5.	CH8-434 · 原书230页 8）如果已经有一个深入敌方王城前方的兵，却多少妨碍己方行动，例如f5兵，就必须考虑推进邻兵，使这个孤独的兵成为雪崩中的活跃部分。每个深入的兵都能成为发动雪崩的契机，吸引邻兵前来。这种作用以深入的h兵最小，以f5兵最大。
CH8-435 · 原书230页 9) Attacks on the castled king in general, and those using pawns in particular, should always be judged on the basis of an assessment of the position as a whole. The placing of the pieces, the situation in the centre and on the other side of the board, positional strengths and weaknesses, how far the position is blocked, the prospects for the endgame — all these come into the reckoning which an experienced player must make before deciding to use his pawns in an attack on the castled king.	CH8-435 · 原书230页 9）一般的王城攻击，尤其是用兵的攻击，始终应以对整个局面的评估为判断基础。棋子的位置、中央与另一翼的局势、局面棋方面的长处与弱点、封闭程度、残局前景，这些都是有经验的棋手在决定动兵攻击王城之前必须考虑的因素。
CH8-436 · 原书230页 10) Cautious before opening his attack, the player must be incisive, consistent, and merciless once he has set out on his attacking course. For an insufficiently justified attack is not helped by belated doubts, but only by resourcefulness in the struggle to provide one's opponent with the most difficult task possible.	CH8-436 · 原书230页 10）发动进攻之前应谨慎，一旦踏上进攻之路，就必须锐利、贯彻始终、毫不留情。根据不够充分的进攻，不能靠事后的迟疑来补救，只能凭战斗中的机智，尽可能给对手提出最困难的问题。
