CH5-3 · 原书143页 And so we have convinced ourselves that the role of the pawn in no way amounts to positional pressure, the control of squares of a certain colour, securing a handy base for piece forces; the pawns are also a powerful 1 means of attack. Without active pawn support, a piece attack often turns out to be doomed to failure, running up against a defensive bristle of enemy pawns. Consequently, one of the main attacking tasks of pawns is the removal of the opponent's defensive pawn line in the sector serving as an object of a planned attack. If, however, such a pawn attack is launched against castling, then it often leads to the creation of direct mating threats to the exposed king.	CH5-3 · 原书143页 前文已经说明，兵的作用不仅在于施加局面压力、控制某种颜色的格，或为子力提供便利的据点；兵本身也是强大的进攻力量。缺少兵的积极支援，子力的进攻往往会受阻于对方的兵屏障，最终失败。因此，兵在进攻中的主要任务之一，就是清除预定攻击区域中的防御兵线。若兵的攻击指向对方易位后的阵地，还常能暴露敌王，制造直接的将杀威胁。
CH5-4 · 原书143页 In practice, with active pawn operations, well known is the formation in the centre bearing the graphic name pawn wedge. The scheme of "driving" such a wedge appears in the following form.	CH5-4 · 原书143页 在兵的积极行动中，有一种常见的中心兵形，形象地称为“兵楔”。下图展示了这种兵楔楔入对方阵地的形态。
CH5-5 · 原书143页 (see diagram next column)	CH5-5 · 原书143页 （见下一图。）
CH5-6 · 原书143页 It should be noted that the formation e4-d5-c4 (for Black e5d4-c5) is called a wedge in the case when one of the opponent's pawns, adjacent to the wedging pawns, is still on its original square c7 or e7 (c2 or e2). Such a wedge is more dynamic (prospects of advancing c4-c5 or e4-e5 for White, correspondingly ... c5-c4 or ... e5e4 for Black), but in return less stable in view of the possibility of undermining it by the moves ...	CH5-6 · 原书143页 应当指出，e4-d5-c4（黑方为e5-d4-c5）兵形称为兵楔时，楔入兵两侧相邻的对方兵，至少有一个仍留在原始格c7或e7（相应为c2或e2）。这种兵楔具有更强的动态潜力：白方可以冲起c5或e5，黑方则可冲起c4或e4。但它也较不稳固，因为对方可以用以下冲兵加以冲击：
CH5-7 · 原书143页 c7-c6 or ... e7-e6 (c2-c3 or e2-e3).	CH5-7 · 原书143页 c7-c6 或 ... e7-e6 (c2-c3 或 e2-e3).
CH5-8 · 原书143-144页 The undermining advance of the f-pawn serves as the basic method of struggle against the wedge. A careful assessment of the position will determine whether the construction of the wedge is favourable or unfavourable. The wedge, of course, allows the gain of space and cramps the opponent, but at the same time limits the dynamic resources and, uo the contrary, increases them for the enemy due to clear prospects of a lively pawn action on the king's flank. It is hardly worthwhile constructing a wedge just to somewhat cramp the opponent. The construction of a wedge is justified only in that case when it is possible to count on retaining the initiative or at least where there is the possibility of preventing the advance of the enemy f-pawn.	CH5-8 · 原书143-144页 冲起f兵打击兵楔的根基，是对抗兵楔的主要方法。建立兵楔是否有利，必须仔细判断具体局面。兵楔固然能争取空间、压缩对手的活动，却也会减少己方的动态选择；对手反而有了在王翼积极运用兵的明确方向。仅仅为了稍微压缩对手，通常不值得建立兵楔。只有能够保持主动权，或至少有办法阻止对方冲起f兵时，这种兵形才有充分依据。
CH5-9 · 原书144页 White more often has recourse to a pawn wedge than Black. In several ideological variations of the King's Indian Defence or Spanish Game, it is a logical link in the plan of play.	CH5-9 · 原书144页 白方采用兵楔比黑方更常见。在古印度防御和西班牙开局的若干典型变化中，建立兵楔是整体计划中合乎逻辑的一环。

CH5-165 · 原书151-152页 On the board are opposite coloured bishops. In the endgame this often serves to guarantee a draw even when t the opponent has a considerable e material advantage. On the other hand, in the middlegame the presence of opposite coloured bishops quite often makes it easier for the attacking side to achieve victory. Usually this depends on the arrangement of the pawn chain. In the present game, the principal group of Black pawns extends over four squares - f6-e5d4-c5 (the wedge!). Meanwhile, he has a black-squared bishop which comes up against a barrier everywhere, in the shape of its own pawns. Another matter is the opponent's bishop, centering fire on the white squares which are the most important main lines on the board. If we add to this the fact that Black has a weak pawn on f6, his king is insecurely placed, its last cover - the h7 point - exposed to attack, and the enemy rooks dominate the weak white squares in the region of the king's flank, then it becomes clear that White has achieved a decisive advantage.	CH5-165 · 原书151-152页 棋盘上形成异格象。残局中，即使一方有明显的子力优势，异格象也常能帮助另一方守和；但在中局，它往往反而有利于进攻方取胜，具体取决于兵链的配置。本局黑方的主要兵群位于f6-e5-d4-c5——仍是那个兵楔！黑格象却处处受己方兵阻挡。白格象则完全不同，它沿重要的白格通道发挥强大作用。加上f6兵薄弱、黑王位置不稳、最后的屏障h7也遭到攻击，白车又控制王翼的白格弱点，可见白方已经取得决定性优势。

CH5-196 · 原书153页 This is a long-standing way of playing against the King's Indian Defence for White, and has recently become more and more frequently met in practice. It is wellknown that in his return match with Smyslov, Botvinnik likewise stuck to this treatment of the opening. The apparently very modest move of the f-pawn has great planning significance. It extends far beyond the limits of a simple striving to reinforce one of the main links of the pawn centre - the e4 pawn. White's plan consists of the construction of a wedge with a subsequent meeting of the counterattack ... f5 with g4. If Black refrains from ... f5, then he will not only turn out to be severely cramped by the wedge, but White will also have the possibility of developing a dangerous pawn attack on the king's flank by h4-h5. All these ""trumps" are exploited by White in the present game.	CH5-196 · 原书153页 这是白方对付古印度防御的一种古老方案，在本书写作时期又越来越常见。鲍特维尼克对斯梅斯洛夫的世界冠军回敬赛中，也采用了这一思路。看似温和的f兵一步，具有深远的计划意义，远不只是巩固中心支柱e4兵。白方准备建立兵楔，再以g4应对...f5反击。若黑方不走...f5，不仅会被兵楔严重压缩，还可能遭到h4-h5发动的危险的兵的攻击。本局白方充分利用了这些有利条件。

CH5-199 · 原书153页 In his last match with Botvinnik, Smyslov tried to counter White's plan with energetic pawn play on the queen's flank (... a6, ...c6, and ... b5). CH5-203 · 原书154页 This position eloquently bears witness to how contemporary notions have changed concerning the opening struggle. According to classical principles, the principal opening task has still not been accomplished: the pieces are virtually undeveloped, it is mainly the pawns which have advanced (White's will make 7 moves out of the first 10!). And yet, despite the opinion of some opening theoreticians, the opening stage can be considered over. CH5-458 · 原书165-166页 The attack of a pawn mass on the flanks is figuratively called a storm, but it does actually warrant this name since it develops impetuously, by force, and in the intense heat of the struggle. With castling on opposite sides, at times both opponents rush into the storm and success usually attends the one who first achieves pawn escort and begins to loosen the position of the enemy king. Not infrequently the pawn storm takes place also upon same-side castling or entirely without castling. In such cases the attacking side needs to watch closely for his own security, in voluntarily exposing his own king, and not allow the opponent to complicate the struggle by means of a counterattack.	CH5-458 · 原书165-166页 侧翼兵群的猛烈进攻，形象地称为“兵潮”。它来势迅猛、具有强制性，确实名副其实。异向易位时，双方有时会同时发动兵潮，通常是谁先把兵送到对方阵地、破坏敌王的防护，谁就更容易成功。同向易位，甚至尚未易位时，也可以发动兵潮。不过，这时进攻方主动冲起护王兵，必须格外注意自己的王，避免让对手通过反击把局面复杂化。
CH5-459 · 原书166页 The pawn storm column usually consists of three pawns, advancing side by side on the f, g, h or a, b, c files; ; there is also a two-pawn column. The pawn storm has more chances of success if the g or h pawns in the opponent's castled position have advanced. The contact of the storming column with such pawns takes place two tempi earlier than with pawns on their original squares, and as a consequence the general tempo of attack is apparently accelerated.	CH5-459 · 原书166页 兵潮通常由f、g、h三兵，或a、b、c三兵并列前冲，也可以只由两个兵组成。如果对方易位阵地的g兵或h兵已经冲起，兵潮就更容易奏效：与这些兵接触，比它们仍在原始格时要快两个先手，整个进攻速度也就明显加快。
CH5-460 · 原书166页 It is necessary to carefully calculate a pawn storm. However, this is a far from easy task. In the majority of cases a certain amount of risk is involved in the storm. Even when the pawn column achieves the aim and comes into contact with the opponent's pawns, one has to weigh up the character of the piece battle which must develop after the disappearance of pawns from the battle zone. It must not be forgotten that the advance of the pawn group creates various positional weaknesses in the rear, and if the storm does not succeed then things might surprisingly turn out to be "no better off than at the start". Let us give some illustrations.	CH5-460 · 原书166页 发动兵潮需要仔细计算，而这并不容易，往往必须承担一定风险。即使兵群已抵达目标并与对方兵接触，还要判断兑兵、打开战区之后的子力战斗。兵群前冲也会在己方后方留下弱点；如果进攻未能奏效，最后可能发现局面并不比最初更好。下面看几个例子。

Black is excellently mobilised, his knight is placed in the centre of the board on a weak square, both his rooks operate in the direction of the centre, one of them is located on the open c-file which leads straight to the haven of the enemy king.
